System of Developing Its Athletes.

FOUNDATION ALREADY LAID DISCUSSES CUP MATCHES

Success in 1916 Will Add Says "Big Four" Would Have Further to Their National Honor and They Will Work to That End.

By Edward R. Bushnell.

"Beware of Germany" is the warning which is being sent to this country by every one who has made a close and intelligent study of the systematic way the Kaiser's athletic officials are going about sixth Olympic games in Berlin in July,

Most persons do not realize the extent to which Germany is planning to break up America's monopoly of Olympic championships. A little history will illustrate this. In 1908, when the games were held in London, the International Olympic Council offered Germany the games The Germans refused to take athletic officials had been planning to entertain the athletes of the world in 1912. To that end they had secured a place for the location of the stadium, and could have had it ready for 1912 had they not decided, after a careful canvass, that throughout the empire had not been sufficiently aroused to enable Germany to do herself justice.

In the meantime Germany went to work to prepare a team which would make a much better showing at Stockholm than its predecessors had done at London. On the foundation then laid the ground much more than our men do Germany has been building since, and now has an athletic system which its sponsors feel will make Germany not ashamed to be compared to the United

Turned Out for Second Game Had Mr. Keene's Team Lost the First.

Public opinion, he believes, will force the association to give way on this point, which he considers extremely important as concerning the chances of the chal lengers' success,

Captain Miller, who was more or less reticent while on his recent visit to this country, has written his impressions of the international matches for "The Field," players, referring to them as "four superlatively good players." Mr. Whitney, he thinks, played quite as well as in 1911, and better than in 1909; the Waterbury boys are just as fast, but lack a little of beyond belief.

On the American team's methods Captain Miller makes this interesting comment: "They play entirely a game of their own at great speed, without a pause or hesitation, and hit the ball across the forward players hitting comparatively few backhanders. They keep their ponies going so fast that on slower mounts they constantly shoot past faster ones by starting more quickly. clever at anticipating what their adversaries mean to do, and always have their nounts on their toes.

"This kind of polo develops into a wild scramble when attempted by inferior players, but is wonderfully effective and disconcerting as demonstrated by this team. When they get into real difficulties, as often happens, they either hit American to coach German athletes, the ball right out of the ground or tuck it When the commission left Berlin it was under the boards, or hit it out only a few abled to this country that they had de- yards into the most unexpected position. ided to offer the position to Alvin C. knowing that one of their own side is Kraenzlein, the former University of more likely to jump to the situation and ennsylvania hurdler. "August and September are holiday months, and it is much easier for busy men to get away. The English team can practise together all through the summer; they can play for the Champion Cup and Ranelagh Open Cup and can have special matches against the next best four in England. They can go to Albertica at the end of July, can take part in the Narragansett and Newport tournaments in August, and can then proceed to Piping Rock for September, and piping the matches at Meadow Brook at the end of that month, when the climate is quite good. The ponies they take will all be fit at that time of year."
